HOW IT LOOKS TO THE BOYS OVER THERE

St Nazaire, France,
March 28, 1919

Editor The Progress:
Clearfield, Pa

Dear Sir.

Just had the best treat I've had since landing in France and write this letter to tell you about it. I had been in the hospital at Saveney for three and a half months and finally received orders to be evacuated from Base Hospital 88 and sent to St Nazaire to a casual company for shipment home. There were a bunch of us and when the American Ambulance Train arrived I hopped into the first but. We had proceeded but a short distance along the road when in giving the driver the "once over" I discovered he was none other than my old Clearfield friend Urban T Leigey whom I did not know was in France With a cry of "Frenchy" I grasped his hand and was hauled into the seat with him and we sure had some visit on that ride.

When he had replied to my hundredth question about home and home folks, I wondered at his information. He then told me he got The Progress and had the last bundle received at his barracks

Believe me, I was right on the job at his quarters right after mess that day and when I got my hands on those Progresses I got right down to business They sure were the best yet and for three days I never left my barracks except to eat. When I took them back to "Frenchy" I looked so pleased he asked me what ailed me and said I looked as though a million dollars had just been wished on me.

I expect to sail in a few days for the good old U S A Sorry to leave Frenchy behind, but as the Y. M C A tailor here said glad to get back to home, sweet home where I can get a Progress to read without having to travel all over France to get it

Yours truly
SGT JOHN A KUHN

FROM PRIVATE DEWEY FYE

Private Dewey Fye who is with Battery E, 17th Field Artillery in the American army of occupation at Ehrenbreitstein, Germany, in a letter to his cousin Raymond Rhone, voices the sentiments of all the Yanks when he says he hopes peace will be made and signed up at once He has had a year in Europe and that is plenty for him The letter was written on March 9th

He says his battery fired the last shots of the war in their sector 40 rounds at 7 30 on the morning of November 11th but did not realize it was over until Fritz failed to reply in the afternoon of that day as usual. We didn't have a big time over it, for we didn't trust them too far, and kept under cover for a few days, besides what kind of a time could we have in a town we had taken from the Germans a few days before with but four or five houses out of hundreds remaining undamaged In addition thereto lots of our comrades were lying on the battlefield yet unburied We sure had some tough times but the boys took it all in the day's work because we were hitting the Kaiser and his crowd and hitting them hard every day

He asks to be remembered to Punch' Garman and Perry Hurd and closes by stating that he lost one finger instead of thumb and fingers as reported

ODD FELLOWS LOOK WITH PLEASURE ON THE COMING WEEK

BALTIMORE, MD, April 18—The coming week is to be a gala week for the lodges of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows throughout the United States and Canada, and in other parts of the world where the order is under the jurisdiction of the sovereign grand lodge in America. The occasion will be the celebration of the centennial anniversary of the founding of the order in the United States

The centennial is to be observed with parades, exercises and tableaux wherever a lodge of the order is in existence In many of the larger cities the program will be of an elaborate character In Baltimore, the birthplace of the order, the celebration will be conducted under the auspices of the sovereign grand lodge and will extend over a period of several days A leading feature will be the unveiling of a memorial commemorating the founding.

Founded in this city, in the tavern of William Lupton, known as "The Seven Stars," on April 26, 1819, the Independent Order of Odd Fellows has become one of the greatest fraternal societies in the world It is purely an American institution, more than 75 per cent of its present total membership being residents of the Untd States and Canada. In recent years the order has extended its jurisdiction to other countries, and now its ritual is printed in a dozen languages

The organization consists of one sovereign grand lodge, with headquarters in Baltimore; six quasi-independent grand lodges in Australasia, Denmark, Germany, Sweden, Switzerland and the Netherlands; 68 grand lodges in the United States and Canada, and nearly 30,000 subordinate lodges, including the Rebekahs The total membership approaches 2,500,000.

Odd Fellowship originated in England, but the American order has been independent of the parent organization. The five founders of the American organization had been affiliated with the order in England and obtained a charter from the Duke of York's Lodge of the Manchester Unity, Preston, England This charter was surrendered in 1821, when "The Grand Lodge of Maryland and of the United States of America of the Independent Order of Odd Fellowship" was organized. In 1825 the name of the grand lodge as changed to "The Grand Lodge of Maryland and of the United States of America of the Independent Order of Odd Fellowship" was organized. In 1825 the name of the grand lodge was changed to "The Grand Lodge of the United States of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and again, in 1879, to "The Sovereign Grand Lldge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows' by which title it has since been known

The chief founder of the order in America was Thomas Wildey, who had come from England to Baltimore in 1817 In London he had been made an Odd Fello in "Loge No 17," in 1803, and advanced from the lowest to the highest rank in its councils in less than three years Later he organized the "Morning Star Lodge, No 38," in London

Associated with Mr Wildey in the organization of the first American lodge which took the title of "Washington Lodge No 1," were John Duncan, John Cheatham, John Welch and Richard Rushworth For twelve years Mr Wildey was Grand Master (the title being changed to Grand Sire in 1826), and in 1835 he was made a traveling agent of the Grand Lodge in the United States Much of the present magnitude of the order is attributed to his zealous missionary work It is stated of his organizing work in every section of the country that 'he had faith in man's reciprocity of affection he had a firm belief in the brotherhood of all, and absolute confidence in the great scheme of fraternity to arouse and give expression to those generally repressed emotion of friendship and love"

PEOPLE EAGERLY AWAIT SHOWING OF PICTURES

Government Film Of Real Actual Battle Scenes To Be Shown Free Throughout County

AT GRASS FLAT ON MONDAY

The great government film entitled "The Price of Peace" will be shown at Grass Flat on Monday afternoon and Monday evening On Tuesday it will be shown at Clearfield, afternoon and evening, and on Wednesday it will be shown at DuBois. Thursday is the day for Philipsburg. Admittance to see these wonderful films is absolutely free. No one should miss it.

It was indeed a happy thought which prompted the Executive Committee of the Victory Loan to buy a print of the great free government film and moving picture entitled "The Price of Peace.' Interest in this attraction is growing throughout the nation and everywhere people are eagerly awaiting the showing. Had the Executive Committee trusted to the general distribution of the films it is doubtful whether many towns in this district would have been given the opportunity of seeing it but since they have brought the print outright it will be shown in every town having a moving picture theatre now in operation. The film was shipped from the Factory on Wednesday evening and is expected here hourly. A regular schedule is being made up and Mr Ed R Taylor of Clearfield has patriotically consented to go with the film during the entire campaign and see that the schedule is maintained and that everybody living in the respective communities have an ample opportunity of seeing this film masterpiece. The Price of Peace is being shown all over the nation. It divulges secrets of the war heretofore zealously guarded by the War Department No charge is to be made at any place where it is shown and the patriotism of the moving picture theatre owners is being depended upon to get the theatrs for showing It is to the credit of these men that, almost without a single exception the movie house owners have consented readily to show the film, without rental or expense charge. The film must not be shown in connection with other pictures unless no charge is made for them also

The purpose of the picture, according to Frank E Buhler, chairman of the Victory Loan motion-picture committee, is to put before the people a graphic account of the nation's part in the war and to make clear the necessity for launching the final war loan

The picture opens with a scene in the office of President Wilson and ends with a showing of an American sentry guarding the Rhine and the home coming of the American army

There are many realistic war scenes "over there,' including the landing in France of American troops, desperate realities in the front-line trenches, with heavy gas and shell attacks and army railroading under fire. The grim battles at Chauteau Thierry, Soissons and Belleau Wood are prominently displayed American and German planes are shown in combat; there is a scene of observation balloons under fire and General Pershing in Prussia and countless scenes of individual heroic action on the part of American doughboys.

The activity of the American navy furnish another important chapter of the film A number of impressive views show the German fleet steaming in the surrender

A chain of circumstances left the date of Monday, April 21st open and the picture will be sent to Grass Flat for the first showing. Samuel Fine, proprietor of the movie there very promptly and patriotically switched his program in order that the people of Grass Flat might witness the wonderful film

I saw it in The Progress.

A TIP TO THE TOPER

By James J. Montague

YOU may keep uncorked and handy stocks of whiskey, gin and brandy; you may store your cocktail "makings" by the keg beneath the stair; you may swear by all that's awful that, although it be unlawful you are going to take your toddy if it lands you in the chair.

YOU can vow that phrohibition for a man of your position and control upon your habits is an outrage and a shame; but, despite your indignation and defiant conversation, when the country ceases boozing you are going to do the same.

FOR the art of getting plastered, like some others men have mastered, is an art that you can never find the key to on your own; and the noble clan of boozers though long-practised whiskey users, will give up the game disgusted if they have to drink alone.

SO you might as well admit it you are shortly going to quit it, though you've packed whole bales of bottles on a score of cellar shelves. Men will liquor at their lunches and each evening drink in bunches; they will drink where crowds are drinking, but the WON'T drink by themselves!

ROOSEVELT ON LIBERTY BONDS

"Long after this war is over, we shall continue in the struggle to achieve liberty for all mankind. To do it effectively, we must bind ourselves together as a nation, and there is surer bond between a man and his country than that he shall be a bondholder of his country."

* * *

"To own bonds of the United States is a badge of honor."

* * *

"There should be Liberty Bonds in ever home in America."

* * *

"I appeal most earnestly to the men and women of America to lend their money to the government; and to do it now!"

* * *

"I myself have invested in these bonds. There is every reason for buying them. The patriotic reason is enough. But, in addition, there is offered the best security in the world, backed by the credit of the government and people of the United States."

* * *

"The outstanding and fundamental need of the government, without which nothing can be accomplished, is money, in large sums and small."

* * *

"Let us introduce into the work of peace something of the spirit our soldiers introduced into the work of war."

* * *

"I hope you farmers will enlist in this field with a will. Make it a people's loan. Make the terms "bondholders" and "people" "interchangeable."

* * *

"Buy Liberty Bonds—the security is the best in the world."

* * *

"Do not let Wall Street monopolize the financing of the War—and, if you do, then do not blame Wall Street but admit that it is more patriotic and far-sighted than you are."

* * *

"It is the duty of every man and of every woman in this country who can possibly afford to do so to buy Liberty Bonds."

* * *

"All should do their bit in subscribing to this loan. Wall Street has been criticized many times. They call them bondholders. If the people of this country don't accept these bonds, Wall Street will. Let us people get them first!"

THE VICTORY LIBERTY LOAN

The fighting is over, but the job isn't finished yet.

Our Army is in Germany keeping "The Watch on the Rhine."

They must be cared for there and brought back home.

We must furnish the money.

Buy Victory Liberty Bonds as a patriotic service, buy them as an act of simple justice to Your Boy "Over There" or buy them as an investment.

But whatever the reason, BUY all you can.

The campaign begins April 21st.

Taking the Chase Out of Purchase

Advertising benefits the man who buys as well as the man who sells. It is part of the Golden Rule of Business and it works both ways.

Don't miss the advertisements in this newspaper. Many of them are interested just because of their news and educational value alone.

But more than that:---Advertisements take the chase out of purchase and make every penny do its full duty.

This last statement is one particularly to be remembered when common-sense economy is not only a national duty, but an individual necessity.

DON'T MISS THE ADVERTISEMENTS.

He can have my shirt now

OVER THERE, somewhere in Germany, I've got a kid brother. He's been in the fight since the beginning and now they've made him a corporal and sent him up to some bridgehead on the Rhine.

I've watched that kid grow up from a baby. I've helped him out of scrapes. I've raised the devil with him for getting fired from school and cussed him out for ducking the lawn-mower job. I've loaned him money I never expected to get back—and never did.

A couple of years ago I came home one day and found the little son-of-a-gun wearing my favorite shirt. We had a family row and I made him take it off.

Yesterday I had a letter from him. It was written with a pencil, over a month ago.

He told me about the fellows he was with and asked about the family. He told me about the work our soldiers are doing along the German border and what a tiresome job it is now that there's no more fighting. He said he'd be home when his job is over.

That kid can have anything I've got—I'm going to finish my job, too

And then the little devil asked me if I remembered the day I made him take off my shirt.

Well—

Until I got that letter I had a comfortable sort of a feeling that the war was over—that I had done about all that my patriotic duty called for, that my part of the job was finished.

But that letter woke me up.

It made me realize that a regular American doesn't put his Patriotism on the shelf when the guns stop booming.

If that kid is going to stick to his job until the whistle blows, I'm going to stick to mine.

I'm going to buy three Liberty Bonds this time and go without that new suit—I don't really need it, anyhow. And I'll feel a lot better.

LESSON FOR APRIL 20

THE RISEN LORD.

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 28:1-10.

GOLDEN TEXT—He is risen, as he said.—Matthew 28:6.

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—Luke Corinthians 15.

PRIMARY TOPIC—An angel tells the resurrection of Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The story of an tomb.

INTERMEDIATE TOPIC—The living Christ.

SENIOR AND ADULT TOPIC—The meaning of Christ's resurrection.

I. The Visit of the Women to the Sepulcher (28:1).

They came early to see the sepulcher. Their zeal and love exceeded that of even Peter, James and John. "Women were last at the cross and first at the tomb."

II. The Earthquake (28:4).

This occurred when the glorious angel descended to roll the stone away from the tomb. This work of the angel was not to allow Jesus to escape, but to show that the tomb was empty. Christ needed not the help of a glorious angel, for he was raised up by his own power as the seal of his atoning work upon the cross. The open tomb and the angel sitting upon the stone with calm dignity is a picture of God's triumph over the devil, and the terror of the keepers is a sample of what all of Christ's enemies shall one day experience when he comes in glory to reign as king.

III. The Angel's Message to the Women (28:5-7).

1. "Fear not" (v. 5). While the enemies have occasion to fear, those who love the Lord receive good news from the empty tomb. The Lord will not long leave those who follow him in suspense and dread. The empty tomb puts an end to all doubts and fears. It is the proof that the question of sin is dealt with and that God is satisfied, carrying with it the assurance of eternal victory.

2. "Come see" (v. 6). The angel said that the Lord had risen, and invited the women to see the place where he lay.

3. "Come quickly" (v. 7). The women must see for themselves and then go tell the message. Experience must precede testimony. They were to go quickly to the disciples with the blessed message, with the assurance that the Lord would go before and meet them.

IV. Jesus Meets the Women (28:9-10).

The women rendered instant obedience and were running to bring word to the disciples. Jesus met them on the way. Those who have an experimental knowledge of Christ should speedily go to tell others of it. To such the Lord will appear and bring joy.

V. What Christ's Resurrection Guarantees to Us (1 Cor. 15).

1. The integrity of the Scriptures (vv. 3, 4). The Old Testament Scriptures told of the advent, death and resurrection of Christ. Christ's resurrection gave the seal of authenticity to them. Christ rebuked the disciples on the way to Emmaus for their unbelief of the Scriptures concerning the resurrection (Luke 24:13-26).

2. The reality of the divine person (Rom. 1:4). Jesus claimed to be one with the Father. He predicted his coming forth from the dead (Matt. 16:21). He declared that no one could take his life from him. He had power to lay his life down and take it up again (John 10:15-18). He died because he willed to do so. The life which he laid down must be resumed at the completion of his sacrificial work. His coming forth from the grave proved that he was what he had claimed to be.

3. The sufficiency of Christ's atoning sacrifice (Rom. 4:25). On the cross Christ exclaimed, "It is finished." By the resurrection God declared to the universe that an adequate remedy for sin had been provided. The resurrection of Christ is God's certificate that an adequate sacrifice has been provided for sin.

4. Our life and immortality (1 Cor. 15:20). He is the first fruits of them that slept. "Because I live ye shall live also." The guarantee that man in the integrity of his being spirit, soul and body shall live again is furnished us in Christ's death and resurrection.

Promoting Happiness.

God has given understanding to man, to be employed for his glory in promoting the happiness of his creatures; and in nothing that belongs to earth can the human understanding be more worthily employed than in the researches of science and in the works of invention.—Chief Justice Chase.

Absorbing the Bible.

Reading God's Word is one thing; to look at it in the right light is another. It is like this: A man may see the figures on the dial, but he cannot tell how the day goes unless the sun shines on the dial. So, also, in reading the Bible—unless the spirit shines within our hearts it is likely that we will not get the correct interpretation.

Lord Never Forgets.

"The Lord never forgets anyone because he is little."

What Color Of A Tune Do You Like

Pernaps you don't realize there are pink pieces of music, red rags, violet jazz, and blue melodies.

Those who know best about music say so; and undoubtedly we have heard topical songs with a dash of lavender.

Color crops out everywhere. When Goodrich brought forth Black Tread rubber, the color caught; and soon a lot of tires were singing the black song in treads.

Of course it is quality, not color, that makes Goodrich treads outwear others.

The distinctive coloring of Silvertown Cord Tires, and their graceful modeling make them much sought by motorists to dress smart cars.

But Goodrich would make them ugly as an old shoe if ugliness would add another mile to their durability.

"Quality First" rules in Silvertown Cord Tires, and Silvertown quality lasts.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Thomas K. Barnes, wealthy New Yorker, on a walking trip through New England, is caught in a storm miles from his destination. At a crossroads point he meets a girl in the same plight. While they discuss the situation an automobile, sent to meet the girl, arrives and Barnes is given a lift to Hart's tavern, while the girl is taken on to her destination, which she tells Barnes is a place called Green Fancy.

CHAPTER II—At the tavern Barnes falls in with a stranded troupe of "barnstorming" actors, headed by Lyndon Rushcroft, and becomes interested in them.

CHAPTER III—As the storm grows, Barnes finds himself worrying over the safety of the girl, traveling over the mountain roads at what he considers dangerous speed. He learns that Green Fancy is something of a house of mystery. Two mounted men leave the tavern in a manner which arouses Barnes' curiosity.

CHAPTER IV—He meets "Miss Thackeray," leading lady of the stranded theatrical troupe, who is acting as chambermaid. That night he is aroused by the bringing of a dying man to the tavern, one of the two who had ridden away a short time before. They tell of finding the dead body of the other man. Both had been shot.

CHAPTER V—The wounded man, registered at the tavern as Andrew Paul, dies, and Barnes is informed he must not leave until after the inquest. O'Dowd and De Soto, guests at Green Fancy, visit the tavern, apparently much mystified over the affair.

CHAPTER VI—Barnes advances Rushcroft money sufficient to release the company from its embarrassing position, thereby becoming its official backer. He visits Green Fancy, and in the grounds meets his acquaintance of the night before, finding her a girl of surprising beauty.

CHAPTER VII—She seems not to be desirous of recognizing him, and turns away. O'Dowd appears and in apparently friendly fashion escorts Barnes (who feels he is unwelcome) from the grounds.

CHAPTER VIII—Miss Thackeray warns Barnes that a man stopping at the tavern, ostensibly a book agent, had searched his baggage in his absence. O'Dowd comes to the tavern and with Barnes and others goes over the scene of the previous night's shooting. Barnes is invited to dinner at Green Fancy.

CHAPTER IX—His acquaintance of the storm is introduced as Miss Cameron. The makeup of the house party, particularly a man introduced to him as "Loeb," and the number of menservants about the place, somewhat astonishes Barnes.

CHAPTER X—Miss Cameron informs him she is a prisoner in the house, appealing to him for aid and binding him to secrecy. In conversation with the chauffeur who drives him back to the tavern, Barnes becomes convinced there is a conspiracy of moment hatching at Green Fancy.

CHAPTER XI—At breakfast the supposed book agent introduces himself as Sprouse, a government secret agent. Sprouse tells Barnes he is there to watch the party at Green Fancy, describing them as refugees from a country overrun by the Germans. He asserts that "Miss Cameron" is a relative of the former ruler of the devastated country and that she or "Loeb" have with them the crown jewels, of enormous value, which Sprouse would recover.

CHAPTER XII—Barnes agrees to accompany Sprouse on a nocturnal visit to Green Fancy, Sprouse with the object of securing the jewels, and Barnes with the hope of rescuing "Miss Cameron."

CHAPTER XIII—They enter the grounds in safety, Sprouse overcoming two men evidently on guard. Reaching the house, Barnes sends up, by means of a fishing rod carried by Sprouse, a note to "Miss Cameron," informing her of their intention to enter the house. She tries to dissuade them, but Sprouse climbs to her room and goes through it on a quest for the crown jewels and state papers.

CHAPTER XIV—Barnes becomes uneasy at Sprouse's long absence and follows him, climbing by means of the ivy attached to the wall. While talking to "Miss Cameron" a commotion in the house warns them that Sprouse has been detected. Barnes, with "Miss Cameron" clinging to him, makes his escape to the ground. He loses his sense of location and they become lost, finally taking refuge in a small shed. "Miss Cameron" explains how she was decoyed to the house, and was to be married against her will to the man "Loeb," whom she reveals as a prince of the house to which she belongs. They are surprised in the darkness by O'Dowd.

CHAPTER XV—O'Dowd demands the jewels, which he thinks the fugitives have in their possession, not knowing of Sprouse's enterprise. Convinced neither "Miss Cameron" nor Barnes have them, O'Dowd puts them on the right road to the tavern, where Barnes gives his companion into the care of Miss Thackeray. Next day O'Dowd tells Barnes Sprouse, whom he describes as an expert burglar, got away with the treasure, after killing a guard in the house. O'Dowd and "Loeb" leave Green Fancy.

CHAPTER XVI—Barnes tells "Miss Cameron" of Sprouse's treachery, and she tells him the whole story of Green Fancy. The man known as Loeb is her cousin, and he inveigled her to the house with the object of possessing himself of the jewels, which were in her custody.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Mr. Sprouse Continues to Be Perplexing, but Puts His Nose to the Ground.

Barnes was abroad early. He was at breakfast when Peter Ames called up. An inspiration seized him when the chauffeur mentioned the wholesale exodus: he hired Peter forthwith and ordered him to report immediately—with the car. He was going up to Green Fancy for Miss Cameron's wardrobe.

Two minutes after Peter drove up to the Tavern he was on the way back to Green Fancy again, and seated beside him was Thomas Kingsbury Barnes, his new master.

There was not a sign of human life about the place. Peter accompanied him upstairs to the room recently occupied by Miss Cameron.

They found two small leather trunks, thickly belabeled, in the room upstairs. Both were locked.

"You take this one," said Barnes, "and I will manage the other." He was in a hurry to get away from the house. There was no telling when the government agents would descend upon the place.

Barnes helped Peter to lift the trunks into the car and then ordered him to start at once for Hart's Tavern.

"You can return later on for your things," he said.

"I got 'em tied up in a bundle in the garage, Mr. Burns," he said. "Won't take a second to get 'em out." He hurried around the corner of the house.

A dry, quiet chuckle fell upon Barnes' ears. He glanced about in surprise and alarm. No one was in sight.

"Look up, young man," and the startled young man obeyed. His gaze halted at a window on the second story, almost directly over his head.

Mr. Sprouse was looking down upon him, his sharp features fixed in a sardonic grin.

"Well, I'll be d—!" burst from Barnes' lips.

"Surprised to see me, eh? If you're not in a hurry, I'd certainly appreciate a lift as far as the Tavern, old man. I'll be down in a jiffy. Stand aside! I'm going to drop." A moment later he swung over the sill, and dropped lightly to the ground eight feet below.

"See, here, Sprouse or whatever your name is—"

"Better hear me out," broke in Sprouse calmly. "I could drill a hole through you so quickly you'd never know what did it," he went on. His hand was in his coat pocket, and a quick glance revealed to Barnes' a singularly impressive angle in the cloth, the point of which seemed to be directed squarely at his chest. "But I'm not going to do it. I just want to set myself straight with you. In a word, I never got anywhere near the room in which the jewels were hidden. This is God's truth, Barnes. I wasn't the only one who was trying to get the baubles, my friend. It was a game in which only the best man could win."

"I know the truth now about Roon and Paul," said Barnes significantly.

"You do?" sneered Sprouse. "I'll bet you a thousand to one you do not. The girl was led to believe that they were a couple of crooks and that they fixed me in that tavern down there. Isn't that what she told you? Well, that story was cooked up for her special benefit. Roon was the Baron Hedlund. Hedlund came up here a week or so ago to keep a lookout for his wife. The baroness is supposed to be deeply enamored of Prince Ugo. He found letters which seemed to indicate that she was planning to join the prince up here. When he heard of the arrival of a lady at Green Fancy the other afternoon, he got busy. I admit that I am the gentleman who telephoned the warning up to the prince. They tried to head the baron and his man off at the cross-roads, but he beat them to it. If there was to be a fight, they didn't want it to happen anywhere near the house. I believe Ugo is the one who got the baron—or Roon, as you know him. Now, that is the true story of the little affair.

"See Here, Sprouse, or Whatever Your Name Is—"

"To go back to my own troubles. When I got out into the hall night before last, after leaving her room, I heard voices whispering in Prince Ugo's room. I beat it up the stairway into the attic. Nothing happened, so I sneaked down to have a peep around. The door to Ugo's room was open, but there was no light on the inside. He came to the door and looked up and down the hall. Then some one else came out and started to sneak away. I leave you to guess the sex.

"Nicholas butted in at this unfortunate juncture. He made the mistake of his life. Ugo jumped back into his room. In less than a second he was out again. He landed squarely on Nicholas' back as the fellow turned to escape. I saw the steel flash. Poor old Nick went down in a heap, letting out a horrible yell. Ugo dragged him into the room and dashed back into his own. A moment later he came out again, yelling for help. There was only one thing left for me to do and that was to get out on the roof if possible, and wait for things to quiet down. I got out through a trap door and stayed there for an hour or so.

"Well, to shorten the story, I finally took a chance and slid down to the eaves where I managed to find the limb of a tree big enough to support me—just as if the Lord had ordered it put there for my special benefit. I was soon on the ground, and that meant safety for me. I had heard Ugo tell the other fellow Nicholas said the man who stabbed him was yours truly. Can you beat it?

"And now comes the maddening part of the whole business. He said that the crown jewels were gone! The thief was running downstairs when he staggered to the door. If we are to find the crown jewels, my friend, we will first have to find Prince Ugo. He has them."

"I don't believe a word of this yarn," said Barnes flatly. "You have the jewels and—"

"Look here, Mr. Barnes, I'm not going to double-cross you again. That's all over. I want to get that scurvy dog who knifed poor old Nick. If you can give me a lead, I'll try to run Prince Ugo down. And if I do, we'll get the jewels."

"We? You amuse me, Sprouse."

"Well, I can't do any more than give my promise, my solemn oath, or something like that. I can't give a bond, you know. I swear to you that if I lay hands on that stuff, I will deliver it to you. Might just as well trust me as Ugo."

"Get in the car," said Barnes suddenly. He had decided to take a chance with the resourceful, indefatigable rascal. There was something convincing about Sprouse's version of the affair at Green Fancy.

Barnes told him that he knew of Prince Ugo's flight. Sprouse looked thoughtful for a long time.

"So O'Dowd knows that I really was after the swag, eh? He believes I got it?"

"I suppose so."

"The only one who thinks I'm absolutely innocent is Ugo, of course—and Mrs. Van Dyke. That's good." Sprouse smacked his lips. "I've got a pretty fair idea where I can find Mr. Loeb. It will take a little time—a couple of days, perhaps—but sooner or later he'll turn up in close proximity to the beautiful baroness."

REGULAR HABITS NOW; CONSTIPATION GONE

Mr. Brooks Suffered for Years—Tells How He Got Relief.

"I have tried a great many things for constipation, but the only thing that has been able to relieve me is Milks Emulsion. I am on only my second bottle and have to take very little of it now. My bowels move regularly every morning, which they have not been doing for a number of years. It seems like living again, after suffering so long. I recommended Milks Emulsion to two of my friends and both say it is the best remedy they ever heard of."—Elmer C. Brooks, 329 Washington St., Peoria, Ill.

Constipation weakens the bowel muscles. Salts and purgatives only increase this condition. Milks Emulsion is a real corrective remedy—one that you can try, under its guarantee, without risking a cent.

Milks Emulsion is a pleasant, nutritive food and a corrective medicine. It restores healthy, natural bowel action, doing away with all need of pills and physics. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food. As a builder of flesh and strength, Milks Emulsion is strongly recommended to weak and nervous people, and it has produced amazing results in [illegible] of tuberculosis of the lungs. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relieved—usually in one day.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. A truly wonderful medicine for weak, sickly children.

No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milks Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions and if not satisfied with the results, your money will be promptly refunded. Price 60c and $1.20 per bottle. The Milks Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Sold and guaranteed by Stewarts Drug Store.

Letters to the Editor

Philipsburg, Pa., Apr. 18, 1918

G. A. Stewart
Editor Progress
Clearfield, Pa.

Dear Sir: Have been reading your exposition of the "Liberty Bond" seculator with a good deal of interest and think your course very commendable.

There is however another little matter with reference to your advertisers, asking for replies, he should have business courtesy and manliness enough to at least say that he does not care to consider the party answering and I would not advertise if I did not have at least two cents to spare to send a postal card to each party answering my advertisement to inform him that the want had been supplied or that he as not worthy of consideration should I have a head sufficiently swelled that I would feel to be above some one else when the small unimportant things that he had forgotten were more than I had ever known about the same business.

I have, on possibly three or four occasions written advertisers in The Progress to which letters I have received no reply what ever and in one or two instances have found the advertiser was a young squirt who had more swelling than brains in his head, and another where youth could not be offered for the lack of common sense and business courtesy.

We take it for granted that you know where the waste basket is, so this will not need be in your way at all.

Very truly yours,
E. E. FINK

AS YOUNG AS YOUR KIDNEYS

The secret of youth is ELIMINATION OF POISONS from your body. This done, you can live to be a hundred and enjoy the good things of life with as much "pep" as you did when in the springtime of youth. Keep your body in good condition, that's the secret.

Watch the kidneys. They filter and purify the blood, all of which blood passes through them once every three minutes. Keep them clean and in proper working condition and you have nothing to fear. Drive the poisonous wastes and deadly uric acid accumulations from your system. Take GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules and you will always be in good condition. You will feel strong and vigorous, with steady nerves and elastic muscles. GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules are imported direct from the laboratories at Haarlem, Holland.

They are a reliable remedy which has been used by the sturdy Dutch for over 200 years, and has helped them to develop into one of the strongest and heartiest races of the world. Get them from your druggist. Do not take a substitute. In sealed packages—three sizes.

GOING UP

Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Simcox are the proud parents of twins, a boy and girl, born Wednesday, April 16. The boy weighs 7½ pounds and the girl 6 pounds. The mother and new babes are getting along nicely. The Simcox family now numbers an even dozen.

Japanese girl babies have their heads shaved until they are three years old.

Hints On Winter Driving

Reading—and heeding—these hints on winter driving will make you a wealthier, wiser, happier motorist in frigid weather. They are reproduced from a bit of a booklet just issued by the United Motors Service, Incorporated, which comprises the service departments of the Delco, Klaxon and Remy organizations. Save them as they appear in these columns, learn them in substance and keep them where you can refer to them. They may help you out of trouble some cold day.

LIGHTING FACTS

Economy in lighting is good for the battery and good for the other driver. A car standing still and with all lights burning consumes current at a rate of from 5 to 7 amperes. Even driving at good speed you little more than break even with your charging. Isn't it disconcerting, too, to meet a car with head lights burning in broad day-light or when it is still scarcely dusk?

Burn only useful lights and burn them only when useful. Side and headlights burning together is an extravagance. Headlights burning in competition with the sun is worse.

Headlights properly focused promote safe driving. The beam should deflect slightly below the horizontal. If one beam seems to throw sharply up, try first removing the bulb and turning it half way around in the socket. Sometimes a filament is misplaced enough to make you think the lamp support has been bent.

There is a drain hole in the removable rim around your headlight glass. Water works its way inside. When replacing the glass on the lamp always see that this drain hole is at the bottom. Otherwise, it won't drain but it will rust.

ITALIAN AND JAPANESE CLAIMS STILL PUZZLE TO PEACEMAKERS

By FRED FERGUSON

PARIS, April 19—With the Italian situation still in a critical stage the Big Four are expected to be confronted with the additional problem today of adjusting Japan's territorial claims in China. Premier Orlando of Italy was scheduled to present a demand for immediate acceptance of the annexationist program guaranteed her under the Pact of London at yesterday's session of the Big Four. In some quarters it was believed that he would threaten to wreck the peace program on the basis of the London Pact. From unofficial but authoritative sources it was learned that the Italian question was held over until today's meeting. The proceedings of the Big Four yesterday is a mystery. The greatest secrecy has been thrown around the session.

HOW IT LOOKS TO THE BOYS OVER THERE

St Nazaire, France,
March 28, 1919

Editor The Progress:
Clearfield, Pa
Dear Sir.

Just had the best treat I've had since landing in France and write this letter to tell you about it. I had been in the hospital at Savenay for three and a half months and finally received orders to be evacuated from Base Hospital 88 and sent to St Nazaire to a casual company for shipment home. There were a bunch of us and when the American Ambulance Train arrived I hopped into the first but. We had proceeded but a short distance along the road when in giving the driver the "once over" I discovered he was none other than my old Clearfield friend Urban T Leigey whom I did not know was in France With a cry of "Frenchy" I grasped his hand and was hauled into the seat with him and we sure had some visit on that ride.

When he had replied to my hundredth question about home and home folks, I wondered at his information. He then told me he got The Progress and had the last bundle received at his barracks

Believe me, I was right on the job at his quarters right after mess that day and when I got my hands on those Progresses I got right down to business They sure were the best yet and for three days I never left my barracks except to eat. When I took them back to "Frenchy" I looked so pleased he asked me what ailed me and said I looked as though a million dollars had just been wished on me.

I expect to sail in a few days for the good old U S A Sorry to leave Frenchy behind, but as the Y. M C A tailor here said glad to get back to home, sweet home where I can get a Progress to read without having to travel all over France to get it

SGT JOHN A KUHN

FROM PRIVATE DEWEY FYE

Private Dewey Fye who is with Battery E, 17th Field Artillery in the American army of occupation at Ehrenbreitstein, Germany, in a letter to his cousin Raymond Rhone, voices the sentiments of all the Yanks when he says he hopes peace will be made and signed up at once He has had a year in Europe and that is plenty for him The letter was written on March 9th

He says his battery fired the last shots of the war in their sector 40 rounds at 7 30 on the morning of November 11th but did not realize it was over until Fritz failed to reply in the afternoon of that day as usual. We didn't have a big time over it, for we didn't trust them too far, and kept under cover for a few days, besides what kind of a time could we have in a town we had taken from the Germans a few days before with but four or five houses out of hundreds remaining undamaged In addition thereto lots of our comrades were lying on the battlefield yet unburied We sure had some tough times but the boys took it all in the day's work because we were hitting the Kaiser and his crowd and hitting them hard every day

He asks to be remembered to Punch' Garman and Perry Hurd and closes by stating that he lost one finger instead of thumb and fingers as reported

ODD FELLOWS LOOK WITH PLEASURE ON THE COMING WEEK

BALTIMORE, MD, April 18—The coming week is to be a gala week for the lodges of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows throughout the United States and Canada, and in other parts of the world where the order is under the jurisdiction of the sovereign grand lodge in America. The occasion will be the celebration of the centennial anniversary of the founding of the order in the United States

The centennial is to be observed with parades, exercises and tableaux wherever a lodge of the order is in existence In many of the larger cities the program will be of an elaborate character In Baltimore, the birthplace of the order, the celebration will be conducted under the auspices of the sovereign grand lodge and will extend over a period of several days A leading feature will be the unveiling of a memorial commemorating the founding.

Founded in this city, in the tavern of William Lupton, known as "The Seven Stars," on April 26, 1819, the Independent Order of Odd Fellows has become one of the greatest fraternal societies in the world It is purely an American institution, more than 75 per cent of its present total membership being residents of the Unitd States and Canada. In recent years the order has extended its jurisdiction to other countries, and now its ritual is printed in a dozen languages The organization consists of one sovereign grand lodge, with headquarters in Baltimore; six quasi-independent grand lodges in Australasia, Denmark, Germany, Sweden, Switzerland and the Netherlands; 68 grand lodges in the United States and Canada, and nearly 30,000 subordinate lodges, including the Rebekahs The total membership approaches 2,500,000.

Odd Fellowship originated in England, but the American order has been independent of the parent organization. The five founders of the American organization had been affiliated with the order in England and obtained a charter from the Duke of York's Lodge of the Manchester Unity, Preston, England This charter was surrendered in 1821, when "The Grand Lodge of Maryland and of the United States of America of the Independent Order of Odd Fellowship" was organized. In 1825 the name of the grand lodge as changed to "The Grand Lodge of Maryland and of the United States of America of the Independent Order of Odd Fellowship" was organized. In 1825 the name of the grand lodge was changed to "The Grand Lodge of the United States of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and again, in 1879, to "The Sovereign Grand Lldge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows' by which title it has since been known

The chief founder of the order in America was Thomas Wildey, who had come from England to Baltimore in 1817 In London he had been made an Odd Fello in "Loge No 17," in 1803, and advanced from the lowest to the highest rank in its councils in less than three years Later he organized the "Morning Star Lodge, No 38," in London

Associated with Mr Wildey in the organization of the first American lodge which took the title of "Washington Lodge No 1," were John Duncan, John Cheatham, John Welch and Richard Rushworth For twelve years Mr Wildey was Grand Master (the title being changed to Grand Sire in 1826), and in 1835 he was made a traveling agent of the Grand Lodge in the United States Much of the present magnitude of the order is attributed to his zealous missionary work It is stated of his organizing work in every section of the country that 'he had faith in man's reciprocity of affection he had a firm belief in the brotherhood of all, and absolute confidence in the great scheme of fraternity to arouse and give expression to those generally repressed emotion of friendship and love"

PEOPLE EAGERLY AWAIT SHOWING OF PICTURES

* * * * * * * * * *

The great government film entitled "The Price of Peace" will be shown at Grass Flat on Monday afternoon and Monday evening On Tuesday it will be shown at Clearfield, afternoon and evening, and on Wednesday it will be shown at DuBois. Thursday is the day for Philipsburg. Admittance to see these wonderful films is absolutely free. No one should miss it.

* * * * * * * * * *

It was indeed a happy thought which prompted the Executive Committee of the Victory Loan to buy a print of the great free government film and moving picture entitled "The Price of Peace.' Interest in this attraction is growing throughout the nation and everywhere people are eagerly awaiting the showing. Had the Executive Committee trusted to the general distribution of the films it is doubtful whether many towns in this district would have been given the opportunity of seeing it but since they have brought the print outright it will be shown in every town having a moving picture theatre now in operation. The film was shipped from the Factory on Wednesday evening and is expected here hourly. A regular schedule is being made up and Mr Ed R Taylor of Clearfield has patriotically consented to go with the film during the entire campaign and see that the schedule is maintained and that everybody living in the respective communities have an ample opportunity of seeing this film masterpiece. The Price of Peace is being shown all over the nation. It divulges secrets of the war heretofore zealously guarded by the War Department No charge is to be made at any place where it is shown and the patriotism of the moving picture theatre owners is being depended upon to get the theatres for showing It is to the credit of these men that, almost without a single exception the movie house owners have consented readily to show the film without rental or expense charge. The film must not be shown in connection with other pictures unless no charge is made for them also

The purpose of the picture, according to Frank E Buhler, chairman of the Victory Loan motion-picture committee, is to put before the people a graphic account of the nation's part in the war and to make clear the necessity for launching the final war loan

The picture opens with a scene in the office of President Wilson and ends with a showing of an American sentry guarding the Rhine and the home coming of the American army

There are many realistic war scenes "over there,' including the landing in France of American troops, desperate realities in the front-line trenches, with heavy gas and shell attacks and army railroading under fire. The grim battles at Chauteau Thierry, Soissons and Belleau Wood are prominently displayed American and German planes are shown in combat; there is a scene of observation balloons under fire and General Pershing in Prussia and countless scenes of individual heroic action on the part of American doubhboys.

The activity of the American navy furnish another important chapter of the film A number of impressive views show the German fleet steaming in the surrender

A chain of circumstances left the date of Monday, April 21st open and the picture will be sent to Grass Flat for the first showing. Samuel Fine, proprietor of the movie there very promptly and patriotically switched his program in order that the people of Grass Flat might witness the wonderful film

I saw it in The Progress.

A TIP TO THE TOPER

By James J. Montague

YOU may keep uncorked and handy stocks of whiskey, gin and brandy; you may store your cocktail "makings" by the keg beneath the stair; you may swear by all that's awful that, although it be unlawful you are going to take your toddy if it lands you in the chair.

YOU can vow that phrohibition for a man of your position and control upon your habits is an outrage and a shame; but, despite your indignation and defiant conversation, when the country ceases boozing you are going to do the same.

FOR the art of getting plastered, like some others men have mastered, is an art that you can never find the key to on your own; and the noble clan of boozers though long-practised whiskey users, will give up the game disgusted if they have to drink alone.

SO you might as well admit it you are shortly going to quit it, though you've packed whole bales of bottles on a score of cellar shelves. Men will liquor at their lunches and each evening drink in bunches; they will drink where crowds are drinking, but the WON'T drink by themselves!

ROOSEVELT ON LIBERTY BONDS

"Long after this war is over, we shall continue in the struggle to achieve liberty for all mankind. To do it effectively, we must bind ourselves together as a nation, and there is surer bond between a man and his country than that he shall be a bondholder of his country."

* * *

"To own bonds of the United States is a badge of honor."

* * *

"There should be Liberty Bonds in ever home in America."

* * *

"I appeal most earnestly to the men and women of America to lend their money to the government; and to do it now!"

* * *

"I myself have invested in these bonds. There is every reason for buying them. The patriotic reason is enough. But, in addition, there is offered the best security in the world, backed by the credit of the government and people of the United States."

* * *

"The outstanding and fundamental need of the government, without which nothing can be accomplished, is money, in large sums and small."

* * *

"Let us introduce into the work of peace something of the spirit our soldiers introduced into the work of war."

* * *

"I hope you farmers will enlist in this field with a will. Make it a people's loan. Make the terms "bondholders" and "people" "interchangeable."

* * *

"Buy Liberty Bonds—the security is the best in the world."

* * *

"Do not let Wall Street monopolize the financing of the War—and, if you do, then do not blame Wall Street but admit that it is more patriotic and far-sighted than you are."

* * *

"It is the duty of every man and of every woman in this country who can possibly afford to do so to buy Liberty Bonds."

* * *

"All should do their bit in subscribing to this loan. Wall Street has been criticized many times. They call them bondholders. If the people of this country don't accept these bonds, Wall Street will. Let us people get them first!"

THE VICTORY LIBERTY LOAN

The fighting is over, but the job isn't finished yet.

Our Army is in Germany keeping "The Watch on the Rhine."

They must be cared for there and brought back home.

We must furnish the money.

Buy Victory Liberty Bonds as a patriotic service, buy them as an act of simple justice to Your Boy "Over There" or buy them as an investment.

But whatever the reason, BUY all you can.

The campaign begins April 21st.

Taking the Chase Out of Purchase

Advertising benefits the man who buys as well as the man who sells. It is part of the Golden Rule of Business and it works both ways.

Don't miss the advertisements in this newspaper. Many of them are interested just because of their news and educational value alone.

But more than that:---Advertisements take the chase out of purchase and make every penny do its full duty.

This last statement is one particularly to be remembered when common-sense economy is not only a national duty, but an individual necessity.

DON'T MISS THE ADVERTISEMENTS.

He can have my shirt now

OVER THERE, somewhere in Germany, I've got a kid brother. He's been in the fight since the beginning and now they've made him a corporal and sent him up to some bridgehead on the Rhine.

I've watched that kid grow up from a baby. I've helped him out of scrapes. I've raised the devil with him for getting fired from school and cussed him out for ducking the lawn-mower job. I've loaned him money I never expected to get back—and never did.

A couple of years ago I came home one day and found the little son-of-a-gun wearing my favorite shirt. We had a family row and I made him take it off.

Yesterday I had a letter from him. It was written with a pencil, over a month ago.

He told me about the fellows he was with and asked about the family. He told me about the work our soldiers are doing along the German border and what a tiresome job it is now that there's no more fighting. He said he'd be home when his job is over.

That kid can have anything I've got—I'm going to finish my job, too

And then the little devil asked me if I remembered the day I made him take off my shirt.

Well—

Until I got that letter I had a comfortable sort of a feeling that the war was over—that I had done about all that my patriotic duty called for, that my part of the job was finished.

But that letter woke me up.

It made me realize that a regular American doesn't put his Patriotism on the shelf when the guns stop booming.

If that kid is going to stick to his job until the whistle blows, I'm going to stick to mine.

I'm going to buy three Liberty Bonds this time and go without that new suit—I don't really need it, anyhow. And I'll feel a lot better.

LESSON FOR APRIL 20

THE RISEN LORD.

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 28:1-15.

GOLDEN TEXT—He is risen, [illegible] said.—Matthew 28:6.

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—Luke [illegible] Corinthians 15.

PRIMARY TOPIC—An angel tells [illegible] the resurrection of Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The story of an [illegible] tomb.

INTERMEDIATE TOPIC—The [illegible] Christ.

SENIOR AND ADULT TOPIC—The meaning of Christ's resurrection.

I. The Visit of the Women to the Sepulcher (28:1).

They came early to see the sepulcher. Their zeal and love exceeded that [illegible] even Peter, James and John. "Women were last at the cross and first [illegible] the tomb."

II. The Earthquake (28:4).

This occurred when the glorious angel descended to roll the stone [illegible] from the tomb. This work of the angel was not to allow Jesus to escape, but to show that the tomb was empty. Christ needed not the help of a glorious angel, for he was raised up [illegible] his own power as the seal of his atoning work upon the cross. The open tomb and the angel sitting upon the stone with calm dignity is a picture of God's triumph over the devil, [illegible] the terror of the keepers is a sample of what all of Christ's enemies [illegible] one day experience when he comes [illegible] glory to reign as king.

III. The Angel's Message to [illegible] Women (28:5-7).

1. "Fear not" (v. 5). While the enemies have occasion to fear, those [illegible] love the Lord receive good news [illegible] the empty tomb. The Lord will [illegible] long leave those who follow him [illegible] suspense and dread. The empty [illegible] puts an end to all doubts and [illegible] It is the proof that the question [illegible] sin is dealt with and that God is [illegible] fied, carrying with it the assurance [illegible] eternal victory.

2. "Come see" (v. 6). The [illegible] said that the Lord had risen, and [illegible] vited the women to see the place [illegible] he lay.

3. "Come quickly" (v. 7). The [illegible] en must see for themselves and [illegible] go tell the message. Experience [illegible] precede testimony. They were [illegible] quickly to the disciples with [illegible] blessed message, with the [illegible] that the Lord would go before [illegible] meet them.

IV. Jesus Meets the [illegible] (28:9-10).

The women rendered instant [illegible] ence and were running to bring [illegible] to the disciples. Jesus met them [illegible] the way. Those who have an [illegible] mental knowledge of Christ [illegible] speedily go to tell others of it. To [illegible] such the Lord will appear and bring joy.

V. What Christ's Resurrection Guarantees to Us (1 Cor. 15).

1. The integrity of the Scriptures (vv. 3, 4). The Old Testament Scriptures told of the advent, death [illegible] resurrection of Christ. Christ's resurrection gave the seal of authentication to them. Christ rebuked the disciples on the way to Emmaus for their [illegible] belief of the Scriptures concerning [illegible] resurrection (Luke 24:13-26).

2. The reality of the divine person (Rom. 1:4). Jesus claimed to be [illegible] with the Father. He predicted [illegible] coming forth from the dead (Matt. 16:21). He declared that no one could take his life from him. He had power to lay his life down and take it up again (John 10:15-18). He died because he willed to do so. The life which he laid down must be resumed at the completion of his sacrificial work. His coming forth from the grave proved that he was what he had claimed to be.

3. The sufficiency of Christ's atoning sacrifice (Rom. 4:25). On the cross Christ exclaimed, "It is finished." By the resurrection God declared to the universe that an adequate remedy for sin had been provided. The resurrection of Christ is God's certificate that an adequate sacrifice has been provided for sin.

4. Our life and immortality (1 Cor. 15:20). He is the first fruits of them that slept. "Because I live ye shall live also." The guarantee that man in the integrity of his being spirit, soul and body shall live again is furnished us in Christ's death and resurrection.

Promoting Happiness.

God has given understanding to man, to be employed for his glory in promoting the happiness of his creatures; and in nothing that belongs to earth can the human understanding be more worthily employed than in the researches of science and in the works of invention.—Chief Justice Chase.

Absorbing the Bible.

Reading God's Word is one thing; to look at it in the right light is another. It is like this: A man may see the figures on the dial, but he cannot tell how the day goes unless the sun shines on the dial. So, also, in reading the Bible—unless the spirit shines within our hearts it is likely that we will not get the correct interpretation.

Lord Never Forgets.

"The Lord never forgets anyone because he is little."

What Color Of A Tune Do You Like

Pernaps you don't realize there are pink pieces of music, red rags, violet jazz, and blue melodies.

Those who know best about music say so; and undoubtedly we have heard topical songs with a dash of lavender.

Color crops out everywhere. When Goodrich brought forth Black Tread rubber, the color caught; and soon a lot of tires were singing the black song in treads.

Of course it is quality, not color, that makes Goodrich treads outwear others.

The distinctive coloring of Silvertown Cord Tires, and their graceful modeling make them much sought by motorists to dress smart cars.

But Goodrich would make them ugly as an old shoe if ugliness would add another mile to their durability.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Thomas K. Barnes, wealthy New Yorker, on a walking trip through New England, is caught in a storm miles from his destination. At a crossroads point he meets a girl in the same plight. While they discuss the situation an automobile, sent to meet the girl, arrives and Barnes is given a lift to Hart's tavern, while the girl is taken on to her destination, which she tells Barnes is a place called Green Fancy.

CHAPTER II—At the tavern Barnes falls in with a stranded troupe of "barnstorming" actors, headed by Lyndon Rushcroft, and becomes interested in them.

CHAPTER III—As the storm grows, Barnes finds himself worrying over the safety of the girl, traveling over the mountain roads at what he considers dangerous speed. He learns that Green Fancy is something of a house of mystery. Two mounted men leave the tavern in a manner which arouses Barnes' curiosity.

CHAPTER IV—He meets "Miss Thackeray," leading lady of the stranded theatrical troupe, who is acting as chambermaid. That night he is aroused by the bringing of a dying man to the tavern, one of the two who had ridden away a short time before. They tell of finding the dead body of the other man. Both had been shot.

CHAPTER V—The wounded man, registered at the tavern as Andrew Paul, dies, and Barnes is informed he must not leave until after the inquest. O'Dowd and De Soto, guests at Green Fancy, visit the tavern, apparently much mystified over the affair.

CHAPTER VI—Barnes advances Rushcroft money sufficient to release the company from its embarrassing position, thereby becoming its official backer. He visits Green Fancy, and in the grounds meets his acquaintance of the night before, finding her a girl of surprising beauty.

CHAPTER VII—She seems not to be desirous of recognizing him, and turns away. O'Dowd appears and in apparently friendly fashion escorts Barnes (who feels he is unwelcome) from the grounds.

CHAPTER VIII—Miss Thackeray warns Barnes that a man stopping at the tavern, ostensibly a book agent, had searched his baggage in his absence. O'Dowd comes to the tavern and with Barnes and others goes over the scene of the previous night's shooting. Barnes is invited to dinner at Green Fancy.

CHAPTER IX—His acquaintance of the storm is introduced as Miss Cameron. The makeup of the house party, particularly a man introduced to him as "Loeb," and the number of menservants about the place, somewhat astonishes Barnes.

CHAPTER X—Miss Cameron informs [illegible] in the house, [illegible] aid and binding him to secrecy. In conversation with the chauffeur who drives him back to the tavern, Barnes becomes convinced there is a conspiracy of moment hatching at Green Fancy.

CHAPTER XI—At breakfast the supposed book agent introduces himself as Sprouse, a government secret agent. Sprouse tells Barnes he is there to watch the party at Green Fancy, describing them as refugees from a country overrun by the Germans. He asserts that "Miss Cameron" is a relative of the former ruler of the devastated country and that she or "Loeb" have with them the crown jewels, of enormous value, which Sprouse would recover.

CHAPTER XII—Barnes agrees to accompany Sprouse on a nocturnal visit to Green Fancy, Sprouse with the object of securing the jewels, and Barnes with the hope of rescuing "Miss Cameron."

CHAPTER XIII—They enter the grounds in safety, Sprouse overcoming two men evidently on guard. Reaching the house, Barnes sends up, by means of a fishing rod carried by Sprouse, a note to "Miss Cameron," informing her of their intention to enter the house. She tries to dissuade them, but Sprouse climbs to her room and goes through it on a quest for the crown jewels and state papers.

CHAPTER XIV—Barnes becomes uneasy at Sprouse's long absence and follows him, climbing by means of the ivy attached to the wall. While talking to "Miss Cameron" a commotion in the house warns them that Sprouse has been detected. Barnes, with "Miss Cameron" clinging to him, makes his escape to the ground. He loses his sense of location and they become lost, finally taking refuge in a small shed. "Miss Cameron" explains how she was decoyed to the house, and was to be married against her will to the man "Loeb," whom she reveals as a prince of the house to which she belongs. They are surprised in the darkness by O'Dowd.

CHAPTER XV—O'Dowd demands the jewels, which he thinks the fugitives have in their possession, not knowing of Sprouse's enterprise. Convinced neither "Miss Cameron" nor Barnes have them, O'Dowd puts them on the right road to the tavern, where Barnes gives his companion into the care of Miss Thackeray. Next day O'Dowd tells Barnes Sprouse, whom he describes as an expert burglar, got away with the treasure, after killing a guard in the house. O'Dowd and "Loeb" leave Green Fancy.

CHAPTER XVI—Barnes tells "Miss Cameron" of Sprouse's treachery, and she tells him the whole story of Green Fancy. The man known as Loeb is her cousin, and he inveigled her to the house with the object of possessing himself of the jewels, which were in her custody.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Mr. Sprouse Continues to Be Perplexing, but Puts His Nose to the Ground.

Barnes was abroad early. He was at breakfast when Peter Ames called up. An inspiration seized him when the chauffeur mentioned the wholesale exodus: he hired Peter forthwith and ordered him to report immediately—with the car. He was going up to Green Fancy for Miss Cameron's wardrobe.

Two minutes after Peter drove up to the Tavern he was on the way back to Green Fancy again, and seated beside him was Thomas Kingsbury Barnes, his new master.

There was not a sign of human life about the place. Peter accompanied him upstairs to the room recently occupied by Miss Cameron.

They found two small leather trunks, thickly belabeled, in the room upstairs. Both were locked.

"You take this one," said Barnes, "and I will manage the other." He was in a hurry to get away from the house. There was no telling when the government agents would descend upon the place.

Barnes helped Peter to lift the trunks into the car and then ordered him to start at once for Hart's Tavern.

"You can return later on for your things," he said.

"I got 'em tied up in a bundle in the garage, Mr. Burns," he said. "Won't take a second to get 'em out." He hurried around the corner of the house.

A dry, quiet chuckle fell upon Barnes' ears. He glanced about in surprise and alarm. No one was in sight.

"Look up, young man," and the startled young man obeyed. His gaze halted at a window on the second story, almost directly over his head.

Mr. Sprouse was looking down upon him, his sharp features fixed in a sardonic grin.

"Well, I'll be d—!" burst from Barnes' lips.

"Surprised to see me, eh? If you're not in a hurry, I'd certainly appreciate a lift as far as the Tavern, old man. I'll be down in a jiffy. Stand aside! I'm going to drop." A moment later he swung over the sill, and dropped lightly to the ground eight feet below.

"See, here, Sprouse or whatever your name is—"

"Better hear me out," broke in Sprouse calmly. "I could drill a hole through you so quickly you'd never know what did it," he went on. His hand was in his coat pocket, and a quick glance revealed to Barnes a singularly impressive angle in the cloth, the point of which seemed to be directed squarely at his chest. "But I'm not going to do it. I just want to set myself straight with you. In a word, I never got anywhere near the room in which the jewels were hidden. This is God's truth, Barnes. I wasn't the only one who was trying to get the baubles, my friend. It was a game in which only the best man could win."

"I know the truth now about Roon and Paul," said Barnes significantly.

"You do?" sneered Sprouse. "I'll bet you a thousand to one you do not. The girl was led to believe that they were a couple of crooks and that they fixed me in that tavern down there. Isn't that what she told you? Well, that story was cooked up for her special benefit. Roon was the Baron Hedlund. Hedlund came up here a week or so ago to keep a lookout for his wife. The baroness is supposed to be deeply enamored of Prince Ugo. He found letters which seemed to indicate that she was planning to join the prince up here. When he heard of the arrival of a lady at Green Fancy the other afternoon, he got busy. I admit that I am the gentleman who telephoned the warning up to the prince. They tried to head the baron and his man off at the cross-roads, but he beat them to it. If there was to be a fight, they didn't want it to happen anywhere near the house. I believe Ugo is the one who got the baron—or Roon, as you know him. Now, that is the true story of the little affair.

"See Here, Sprouse, or Whatever Your Name Is—"

"To go back to my own troubles. When I got out into the hall night before last, after leaving her room, I heard voices whispering in Prince Ugo's room. I beat it up the stairway into the attic. Nothing happened, so I sneaked down to have a peep around. The door to Ugo's room was open, but there was no light on the inside. He came to the door and looked up and down the hall. Then some one else came out and started to sneak away. I leave you to guess the sex.

"Nicholas butted in at this unfortunate juncture. He made the mistake of his life. Ugo jumped back into his room. In less than a second he was out again. He landed squarely on Nicholas' back as the fellow turned to escape. I saw the steel flash. Poor old Nick went down in a heap, letting out a horrible yell. Ugo dragged him into the room and dashed back into his own. A moment later he came out again, yelling for help. There was only one thing left for me to do and that was to get out on the roof if possible, and wait for things to quiet down. I got out through a trap door and stayed there for an hour or so.

"Well, to shorten the story, I finally took a chance and slid down to the eaves where I managed to find the limb of a tree big enough to support me—just as if the Lord had ordered it put there for my special benefit. I was soon on the ground, and that meant safety for me. I had heard Ugo tell the other that Nicholas said the man who stabbed him was yours truly. Can you beat it?

"And now comes the maddening part of the whole business. He said that the crown jewels were gone! The thief was running downstairs when he staggered to the door. If we are to find the crown jewels, my friend, we will first have to find Prince Ugo. He has them."

"I don't believe a word of this yarn," said Barnes flatly. "You have the jewels and—"

"Look here, Mr. Barnes, I'm not going to double-cross you again. That's all over. I want to get that scurvy dog who knifed poor old Nick. If you can give me a lead, I'll try to run Prince Ugo down. And if I do, we'll get the jewels."

"We? You amuse me, Sprouse."

"Well, I can't do any more than give my promise, my solemn oath, or something like that. I can't give a bond, you know. I swear to you that if I lay hands on that stuff, I will deliver it to you. Might just as well trust me as Ugo."

"Get in the car," said Barnes suddenly. He had decided to take a chance with the resourceful, indefatigable rascal. There was something convincing about Sprouse's version of the affair at Green Fancy.

Barnes told him that he knew of Prince Ugo's flight. Sprouse looked thoughtful for a long time.

"So O'Dowd knows that I really was after the swag, eh? He believes I got it?"

"I suppose so."

"The only one who thinks I'm absolutely innocent is Ugo, of course—and Mrs. Van Dyke. That's good." Sprouse smacked his lips. "I've got a pretty fair idea where I can find Mr. Loeb. It will take a little time—a couple of days, perhaps—but sooner or later he'll turn up in close proximity to the beautiful baroness."

REGULAR HABITS NOW; CONSTIPATION GONE

Mr. Brooks Suffered for Years—Tells How He Got Relief.

"I have tried a great many things for constipation, but the only thing that has been able to relieve me is Milks Emulsion. I am on only my second bottle and have to take very little of it now. My bowels move regularly every morning, which they have not been doing for a number of years. It seems like living again, after suffering so long. I recommended Milks Emulsion to two of my friends and both say it is the best remedy they ever heard of."—Elmer C. Brooks, 323 Washington St., Peoria, Ill.

Constipation weakens the bowel muscles. Salts and purgatives only increase this condition. Milks Emulsion is a real corrective remedy—something you can try, under its guaranty, without risking a cent.

Milks Emulsion is a pleasant, nutritive food and a corrective medicine. It restores healthy, natural bowel action, doing away with all need of pills and physics. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food. As a builder of flesh and strength, Milks Emulsion is strongly recommended to [illegible] nervous people, and it has produced amazing results in [illegible] of tuberculosis of the lungs. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relieved—usually in one day.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. A truly wonderful medicine for weak, sickly children.

Letters to the Editor

Philipsburg, Pa., Apr. 18, 1918

G. A. Stewart
Editor Progress
Clearfield, Pa.

Dear Sir: Have been reading your exposition of the "Liberty Bond" seculator with a good deal of interest and think your course very commendable.

There is however another little matter with reference to your advertisers, asking for replies, he should have business courtesy and manliness enough to at least say that he does not care to consider the party answering and I would not advertise if I did not have at least two cents to spare to send a postal card to each party answering my advertisement to inform him that the want had been supplied or that he as not worthy of consideration should I have a head sufficiently swelled that I would feel to be above some one else when the small unimportant things that he had forgotten were more than I had ever known about the same business.

I have, on possibly three or four occasions written advertisers in The Progress to which letters I have received no reply what ever and in one or two instances have found the advertiser was a young squirt who had more swelling than brains in his head, and another where youth could not be offered for the lack of common sense and business courtesy.

We take it for granted that you know where the waste basket is, so this will not need be in your way at all.

Very truly yours,
E. E. FINK

AS YOUNG AS YOUR KIDNEYS

The secret of youth is ELIMINATION OF POISONS from your body. This done, you can live to be a hundred and enjoy the good things of life with as much "pep" as you did when in the springtime of youth. Keep your body in good condition, that's the secret. Watch the kidneys. They filter and purify the blood, all of which blood passes through them once every three minutes. Keep them clean and in proper working condition and you have nothing to fear. Drive the poisonous wastes and deadly uric acid accumulations from your system. Take GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules and you will always be in good condition. You will feel strong and vigorous, with steady nerves and elastic muscles. GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules are imported direct from the laboratories at Haarlem, Holland. They are a reliable remedy which has been used by the sturdy Dutch for over 200 years, and has helped them to develop into one of the strongest and heartiest races of the world. Get them from your druggist. Do not take a substitute. In sealed packages—three sizes.

GOING UP

Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Simcox are the proud parents of twins, a boy and girl, born Wednesday, April 16. The boy weighs 7½ pounds and the girl 6 pounds. The mother and new babes are getting along nicely. The Simcox family now numbers an even dozen.

Japanese girl babies have their heads shaved until they are three years old.

Hints On Winter Driving

Reading—and heeding—these hints on winter driving will make you a wealthier, wiser, happier motorist in frigid weather. They are reproduced from a bit of a booklet just issued by the United Motors Service, Incorporated, which comprises the service departments of the Delco, Klaxon and Remy organisations. Save them as they appear in these columns, learn them in substance and keep them where you can refer to them. They may help you out of trouble some cold day.

LIGHTING FACTS

Economy in lighting is good for the battery and good for the other driver. A car standing still and with all lights burning consumes current at a rate of from 5 to 7 amperes. Even driving at good speed you little more than break even with your charging. Isn't it disconcerting, too, to meet a car with head lights burning in broad day-light or when it is still scarcely dusk?

Burn only useful lights and burn them only when useful. Side and headlights burning together is an extravagance. Headlights burning in competition with the sun is worse.

Headlights properly focused promote safe driving. The beam should deflect slightly below the horizontal. If one beam seems to throw sharply up, try first removing the bulb and turning it half way around in the socket. Sometimes a filament is misplaced enough to make you think the lamp support has been bent.

There is a drain hole in the removable rim around your headlight glass. Water works its way inside. When replacing the glass on the lamp always see that this drain hole is at the bottom. Otherwise, it won't drain but it will rust.
